MRS. KRESS CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Vinia Kress, whose birthday was on May 25, was honored at a picnic luncheon on Sunday, June 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Johnson, Jr.

There is some controversy as to whether Mrs. Kress was born on May 25, 1936 or 1936 but nevertheless her birthday was joyfully celebrated with many friends and relatives taking part.

Mrs. Kress was the recipient of gifts, money, cards and three beautifully decorated cakes. One cake was baked by Mrs. Hazel Johnson and the second one by Mrs. Brenda Kraatz. The third cake was baked by Mrs. Patricia Hodge and presented to Mrs. Kress by Miss Becky Simmons.

Those attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Church and three children, Manassas; Mr. and Mrs. Ned Almond, Lynchburg; Mrs. Martha Cox, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Asal, Farmville; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shelton and son, Prospect; Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Smith and two children, Carysbrook; Mr. John Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Riley Clarke and two children, Mrs. Marie Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Palma Ball and son, all of Marion. The following local residents were present: Mrs. Eula Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Johnson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnson, Mrs. Pauline K. Gunter and three daughters and Miss Becky Simmons.

Many pictures were taken to remember the day including one of Mrs. Kress and all of her children (4 daughters). There were four generations present . . . four different ways.

The honoree wishes to say thank you to all who helped make it a wonderful day including the Lord who didn't allow the predicted rain to fall but instead allowed a beautiful and comfortable day.

Federal Water Pollution Laws To Effect Agriculture

Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 (PL-92-500) will effect farmers all over Virginia. A training program for extension agents and Soil Conservation Service (SCS) conservationists from a 20 county area was held in Appomattox June 13. The purpose of this program was to inform these agencies of the tremendous impact that Section 208 will have on agricultural practices in the immediate future.

Heading up the program was Bruce Little, from the East Central District Extension Service. Also, on the program were Ms. Betsy Sutherland from the State Water Control Board, Frank Holt of SCS, Clifford Vaughan representing the Soil and Water Conservation Commission, E. B. Hale and R. L. McElwee from VPI&SU.

They explained that most states have a strict regulatory agency but Virginia is one of three states which will try voluntary compliance to meet the standards of Section 208. The voluntary compliance program is based on each landowner correcting erosion problems on his/her property. Reduced erosion results in less sedimentation of streams and higher water quality. Betsy Sutherland explained that Virginia will have to submit a progress report to the Environmental Protection Agency each year. "We probably have no more than two years before a regulated program unless progress in water quality is made." If Virginians wish to avoid the expense of hiring an enforcement organization and forgo the time and expense of plans, permits, and inspections, "we must make a nonregulatory program work," says Ed Hale of VPI&SU.

Conservation practices such as stripcropping, sod waterways, and terraces provide the tools with which a landowner can save his topsoil and control stream pollution. SCS will assist cooperators by supplying technical assistance to farmers in hope that the voluntary compliance program will work and the EPA will not need to institute regulatory action. Conservation practices are economically beneficial to the farmer and will result in a higher water quality for us all.
